The Peace Commission in session at Los Pinos, has presented its ultimatum to the refractory Utes. It calls for the surrender of eleven chiefs of the White River tribes, who are to be tried for the murder of Agent Meeker and his assistants. At last accounts the Indians were holding a council to decide upon their answer to the representatives of the Government. The Globe-Democrat says it is probable that if they feel convinced that sufficient evidence to convict the accused chiefs cannot be produced by the Government, a surrender will be agreed upon, and the mockery of a trial will follow. But if the Indians fear that any of the accused will be brought to the halter, they will doubtless refuse to accede to the demand of the ultimatum. The commission has no force at hand to compel a surrender, and the Utes are free to act as they please. A refusal to give up the chiefs will doubtless be followed by a declaration of war against the White River band; unless Mr. Schurz can devise some other plan for a big talk with the murderous savages.

In answer to the demand of the Commission, delivered on the 8th by Ouray, he says: "We will deliver for trial, Douglas and those Indians engaged in the massacre of Meeker and employees, provided they are tried in Washington. The people of Colorado are not friendly, and a fair trial here or in New Mexico, is not to be expected."

The following telegram was sent by the Secretary of the Interior to Gen. Hatch, at Los Pinos Agency:

Receive the surrender of the Indians designated by your commission, with the understanding that they will be guaranteed a fair trial by a military commission outside of Colorado and New Mexico. Inform Ouray that he will be received with four or five Uncompaghe Utes, three Southern Utes and three White River Utes. Take care that good and influential men be selected, especially from White River; the Utes will probably be desirous to have Jack here. Take possession of the prisoners with a military guard, and convey them in the first place to Fort Leavenworth.

To get even with the St. Louis papers which are extolling Jay Gould, the Chicago Times says Gould's speeches and brags in St. Louis and the far west cause not a little amusement in Wall street. The general opinion in that quarter is that all of his recent purchases have been made for the purpose of creating a demand for the stocks affected hereby, thus increasing the price and enabling him to sell at a profit. The small towns in the west where he talks so charmingly of his philanthropic motives are expected to furnish a large share of the victims. In this connection it is stated that Gould's personal property amounts to not less than $40,000,000, and that he controls railway interests worth twice that sum.

It won't do any good to mince the matter, says the Wichita Eagle, for we will have to take our share of the exodusters. They are coming up over the M., K. & T. railroad by swarms. Emporia got two car loads last Monday week. Parsons and other places below have hundreds to spare already. Wichita is mentioned as a place able to provide for or look after or give employment to a couple of hundreds. Nine out of ten desire farm work.

A curiosity in human shape, by the name of John Remfau, of Allenville, Mo., has arrived at St. Louis. He has no arms, but two diminutive hands grow out of his shoulders, and with these he feeds himself. He used to be in a side show that traveled with Yankee Robinson.

They hug and kiss on the public streets of Winfield. A nice town that.

Information from Las Animas is to the effect that a fine vein of coal has been discovered there.

The boom seriously affects the price of iron. Nails now sell at about twice the price of a year ago.

The sand hills are said to be infested with wild cats, several reported as having been seen by various parties, says the Chronicle.

Squads of stock men are gobbling up the lands in the Pan Handle, says the Glendon News, so fast that we can hardly keep the records straight.

Senator Plumb has introduced a bill to prohibit any soldier or officer, while in active service, from gambling, under penalty of court martial.

It is estimated that the hay crop of this country, reckoned at only five dollars per ton, is worth three times that of cotton, ten times that of wool, and twice that of wheat.

From the quantity of meat of all kinds—beef, buffalo, antelope, pork, wild geese, &c. in the Larned markets, says the Chronicle, the country does not look like starving.

J. H. Hicks, a cattle man, of Russell, K., deliberately blew his brains out with a pistol, in his room at the Russell House, Tuesday morning. Ill health, affecting his mind was the cause.

The Secretary of the Interior has decided that the benefits of the timber culture law may be secured by planting cottonwood trees. This decision reverses the former ruling of the department.

The World says Mr. Childs, the Wakeney and Dodge City mail contractor, will have things so arranged that he can use a stove in the hack when the weather is inclement.

Nobody who pretends to be anybody should be without a newspaper next year. The national political campaign will virtually open with the new year, and promises to be an exciting one.

Farmers from all over the country say that the prospect for good crops next year are better now than for years past. One who has been all over Pawnee county informs the Chronicle that there is not a poor piece of wheat to be seen.

Senator Hill has introduced a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to negotiate with the Ute Indians for relinquishing their reservation in Colorado, and their removal and settlement in the Indian Territory.

The Wakeney World says it is not unusual to see people driving through town with a small frame house mounted on the running gears of their wagon. Such wagon beds will do to put on the ground and use for residences when the claims are reached.

There were two hundred and thirty car loads of freight in the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad company's yard in Pueblo last Saturday, waiting to be unloaded. There were eighty cars of coal bound for various points on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad.

We cannot but smile, says an exchange, when a man tells us he cannot take his local paper because he wants an eastern paper. He might as well say he cannot afford bread because he intends having sponge cake. Meanwhile he has to ask his neighbors about the local news and notices, and the local paper goes on building up his place and business, and serving his convenience without his support. This is not meanly, and we say without hesitation, that there is something out of joint with the man who does not support his local paper.

Col. D. B. Long, State Fish Commissioner, was in Leavenworth, on Sunday, says the Times, on his way to Iowa, where he will procure several thousand California salmon and lake trout for the rivers of western Kansas. He says the fish generally will leave the place where they are deposited and seek waters they are accustomed to, but that they will return when spawning time arrives.
